There is some talk of transferring the coming series of the New Yorks in Cleveland to this city. Frank De Hass Robison is reported to be endeavoring to secure the necessary consent of the League magnates.

Inspector of Umpires John B. Day left here yester-day morning on an official visit to the West. He goes to Cleveland first, and will then tour the other cities on the circuit. It will be his duty to carefully watch the work of the umpires and the behavior of the play-ers on the field.

LAWRENCE STATION, L. L., July 17.-The polo tournaments, which have been in progress during the past two weeks at the pole field of the Rockaway Hunt Club for the Blizzard and the Cedarhurst challenge cups, closed this aftersoon with an unusually interesting and exciting game. The contesting teams were the Westchester County Country Club and the Devons of Devon, Pa. The Westchester team won by only one-fourth of a goal. The total score was Westchester, 9% goals; Devon, 9½ goals. For West-chester the team exhibition of the Waterbury brothers could not have been excelled. Stow played the position of back to perfection and Stanley Mortimer did splendid work in riding off. Many brilliant back, front, and side strokes were made by the members of the Devon team. The line-up was as follows:

drick, 4: 3: George McFadden, 2; 4. R. E. Strawbridge, 2. Total, 11 goals.

The difference in the team handicaps, seven goals, was allowed to the Devons. In the first period the latter failed to score. For Westchester J. M. Waterbury hit two goals, Stanley Mortimer one, and E. K. Stow one. In the second period L. P. Snowden hit one goal for the Devons, while Westchester scored two. Six goals were hit during the last period. James M. Waterbury made three and L. Waterbury one for the Westchesters, and R. E. Strawbridge and George Kendrick each one for the Devons. In the first period Westchester lost a quarter of a goal for a safety, and in the second period the Devons lost a half goal for two safeties.

Bowling on the Greens. The bowling on the greens match for the championship of America was played yesterday afternoon between the Massachusetts and New Jersey teams at the latter's lawns, Communi paw. The defeat of the Jerseymen by a score of 77 to 62 shots was hardly expected.

The match was played in two rinks. On the The match was played in two rinks. On the first rink the Jerseymen were smothered by a score of 42 to 25 shots, which they were unable to overcome in the second rink, as they only beat the Bay State players by two shots, the score being 37 to 35.

The skips for the Massachusetta team were Charles Butcher, rink No. 1, and William Bates, rink No. 2, both of whom hail from Boston. The Jerseymen were skipped by William Evans of Kearny, in rink No. 1, and Iludoinh Appleton of Jersey City, in rink No. 2. Each rink was composed of four men a side.

The Jerseymen, having defeated the crack Dunclien and Boston players last year, imagined that they were peerless, and never suspected for a moment that the players from the Hub would revenge their former defeat.

Bowling on the greens is conducted upon the same lines as curling. Small spheres of lignum vitze wood are sent coursing over the lawns to the tees at either end in the same way as the granite stones are speed on the ice in curling.

The Venceder Carries Away Her Bebetay and

Is Beaten by the Syce-The Colonia Score

Another Victory Over the Stately Emerald Whose Centreboard Gets Basty Jammed "Larchmont luck" is proverbial. Only two or three times since the organization of the Larchmont Yacht Club has the club had a continuous calm for one of its races, and yester day's event was no exception to the rule. It of the pleasure boats in this vicinity were swinging their anchors long before 9 o'clock. At that hour the Corinthian skippers received their final instructions from the Regatta Committee, consisting of John F. Lovejoy, H. C. Wintringbam, and Howard Coates.

The greatest interest was displayed in the meeting of Fred M. Hoyt's Syce and ex-Commodore Harry M. Gillig's Vencedor, which, under a new rig, made her first appearance in a race against the crack-a-jack of Long Island Sound. The Western yacht mot defeat gracefully, but created a favorable im-pression. It is expected that she will make a better showing when she is thor-oughly tuned up. She is rigged with a pole mast, quite an innovation for a boat of her sire. Her sails, barring the fact that they need stretching, do credit to the veteran John Sawyer, and, as one of the members of the "Rock-ing Chair" fleet remarked, "He ain't no tent maker, either." Of scarcely less interest to the white-trousered Corinthians was the meeting of Commodore Clarence Postley's Colonia and J. Rogers Maxwell's Emerald in a wind-jamming match. The Colonia again defeated the pride of the Atlantic Yacht Club, notwithstanding that Mr. Maxwell tried everything he knew in the way of seamanship to anatch the laurel wreath of victory from his speedy rival. The Emeraid would have done better but for the fact that her centre-board was jammed during the entire first round. The Vencedor carried away her bobstay, and, as a consequence, her headsails slacked away. At colors there was not a breath of air stirring, while far off to the southward hung a thin haze that half obscured the Long Island hills. It was 11:30 o'clock before Æolus put in an appearance and the curtain of mist lifted, isclosing the large fleet, with mainsails hoisted and headsails ready to be run up at the signal from the Regatta Committee. The courses were triangular, the larger boats sailing a distance of fifteen miles twice over. The larger sloops went over an eleven-mile triangle twice, while the smaller boats traversed a total distance of eleven nautical miles, twice around a small triangle.

At 12:30 o'clock there was a nice sailing breeze coming out from the southwest, and half an hour later the preparatory whistle sounded. In the mean time the fleet had sailed out to the starting line, which was drawn between the conthwest stakehoat and the committee steamer. anchored 200 feet to the northeast. As the whistle sounded for the start of the big schooners in racing trim, J. Rogers Maxwell, whistle sounded for the start of the big schooners in racing trim, J. Rogers Maxwell, who as usual was at the wheel of the Emerald, hauled sheets aft and came down to the mark in grand style, with Hank Haff standing near the main abrouds directing the saliors as they trimmed in the canvas to a nicety. She was fully two lengths ahead of the Colonia, which came boiling up to the line, with Charley Barr at the wheel and Commodore Postley standing beside him. The course to the first mark was a broad reach and the figers broke out their bailooners a moment before they crossed.

The Emerald was footing faster than her big rival, that swept along under a great cloud of anowy duck. The Amorita, which was the next boat on the line, with W. Gould Brokaw at the wheel and Capt. Jack Watson looking out for the sails, had a walkover. The next pair, Vencedor and Syce, came lufting down to the line, a manceuvre in which Commodore Gillig's newly acquired craft had all the better of it. She went over near the windward end about a length ahead of the Syce. Fred Hort steered the latter, which carried her big clubtopsail, staysail, ib, and reaching lib topsail, while the Western craft heeled gontly under mainsail, staysail, and an enormous balloon jib. Hoyt kept the Syce away and tried to pass through the lee of the Vencedor, but the Western craft, heeled gontly under mainsail, staysail, and an enormous balloon in the year, held her own and also blocked the game when the Syce tried to luff out to windward. The Pawnee had a sailover in the year, held her own and also blocked the game when the Syce tried to luff out to windward, The Pawnee had a sailover in the pawl class, while the Acushia and Surprise made a pretty start, the first named holding the weather berth, with Surprise up to her port shrouds. His manner was also awaggering and his language interspersed with vulgarities. The awagger has disappeared his 'savinge is more subdued, his frame is less atout, but his face remains the same. Confinement has served to only deepen the lines, showing a life of excess. Henham has a curious habit. A small calendar lies on the stand near the grated window of his coll, and each morning of his confinement there he makes a mark on it with a pencil. There are now 190 marks on the calendar, and only the twelve men who are sitting in judgment over him can determine when he will make the final entry on this strange diary. This morning, contrary to his usual custom, Benham came into the Court House looking decidedly the worse for wear. His clothes were dirty and mussed, and looked as if he had not had them off during the night. He appeared more nervous than usual, and at times during the examination his eyes would blink as he endeavored to keep back the tears, and he kept rubbing his throat first with one hand and then with the other.

Dr. W. H. Heath of Buffalo was the only witness who was sworn to-day by the defence. His examination was not concluded until noon, when an adjournment was taken until Monday morning. The Buffalo physician has conducted about 500 post-mortem examinations, but has never seen a case of prussic acid poisoning. His knowledge was entirely derived from the books. This has been the case with most of the experts who have been sworn so far by either side, cases of poisoning by this acid being so rare. Mr. Mackey asked Dr. Heath a long hypothetical question, and at its conclusion asked whether he would, in view of all the symptoms mentioned, say that death resulted from prussic acid poisoning.

"I do not think," replied Dr. Heath, "that the symptoms you have described could be attributed to the effects of prussic acid. I do not think that a person suffering under the effects of prussic acid with the witness said to the witness said to could have screamed while being "It certainly would."

MR. HENDRICKSON'S BAD DAY. dated by a Fall from a Car He Falls Through Window and Is Arrested. FLUSHING, L. I., July 17.-Hubbard Hendrick on, a lawyer residing in Bayside, was arrested Hall by a policeman who judged him to be in-toxicated. The lawyer was in such a condition that he could not at the time make an explanation of his conduct. Early in the evening he was seen by Policeman John Flannery to fall through a show window of Whiting's cigar store in a show window of Whiting's cigar store in Main street. While he was standing on the sidewalk, and before his fall through the class, it was noticed that both his ears were bleeding. When the policeman attempted to arrest him he resisted until a Deputy Sheriff, Slavin, went to the policeman's assistance. After two hours' confinement Hendrickson regained his composure and told who he was. Word was sent to his home, and a short time afterward his coachman arrived at the jail with a carriage, in which he was taken home, after furnishing security for his appearance in court this morning.

When arraigned before Justice Smith to-day Mr. Hendrickson said that yesterialy afternoon he started to ride from Long Island City to Flushing on a trolley car. When the car was rounding one of the curves in Corona he was thrown against one of the supports of the roof. The jar dazed him, and a moment later he fell from the car to the street.

He was carried into a house, where the wounds on his ears were dressed. He said his identity was made known by some papers in his pockets, and he was placed on another car for Flushing. The Justice discharged him.

The license fee imposed is in no sense a tax, and is not, therefore, within the operation of the provision of the Constitution which provides that all needful revenue shall be raised by levying a tax by valuation, so that every person or corporation shall pay a tax in proportion to his, her, or its property, and hence all questions as to the value of property to be taxed are of no consequence in thir case.

"It is simply what if purports to be, a license fee, and is imposed under the police power and not under the taxing power. Nor can the objection be made that the use of said vehicles is a common right, and therefore not subject to license, upon the ground that where the power to prohibit does not exist power to license cannot be exercised. The Defender Will Not Leave Her Moorings This Year.

NEW ROCHELLE, July 17,-The fact that C. Oliver Iselin made known his intention to participate in the coming annual cruise of the New York Yacht Club, together with signs of activity about the Defender, which is moored in Nep-tune Bay, between Glen Island and New Rochelle, has caused considerable discussion in yachting circles for several days. Reports were circulated that the champion yacht was going into commission, and the pleasant hopes of admirers that the Defender would enter into races with the Colonia and Emerald were almost realized. It was learned to-day that the big sloop was receiving a fresh cost of paint, but that no other work had been done on her this that no other work had been done on her this season.

A representative of THE SUN saw Mr. Iselin at his home at All View, Premium Point, today. He said the Defender would not leave her present moorings this year. He had considered whether he would fit up the cup champion for his proposed cruise, but had decided that she was not well adapted for that purpose. He further said that Gen. Paine's old cup defender Mayflower and Willoughby Weston's schooner Intrepid had been offered to him, and he had decided to charter the latter. The Intepid will be fitted up immediately, and she will be acut to New Rochelle next week. The schooner is 120 feet over all, 102 feet on the water line, and was built by Lloyd Phænix. She will be moored directly in front of Mr. Iselin's home.

THE BIG INDIAN SWAMP.

GREAT PIKE COUNTY JUNGLE AND HOW IT GOT ITS NAME.

The Tragic Events Attending the Hurried Taking of Bill Cortright and His Neighbor. McGlunis, by Indians, and See Trans They Made Theen in Wilderness MILFORD Pa., July 17.-Big Indian Swamp is famous locality in the Pike county wilderness, It is in the southwestern part of the county, near the base of Highkneb, and is included in the domain of the Blooming Grove Park Associ-ation. It is doubtful if it offered cover to a greater number of bears in the days when the adventure of Bill Cortright gave it its name than it does to-day, nor are its depths any easier of access now than they were then. Bill Cortright was not after bear, though, when he visited the swamp that time. He was after an Indian. The Indian was only a few paces ahead had no gun. Another reason was that just

The way it came about was that at evening one day, more than one hundred years ago, Cortright and a man named McGinnis, the two being neighboring settlers down along the Bushkill Creek, went out to a pasture lot on one of their clearings to fetch in a couple of horses. According to the way tradition has brought it to the man from the Knob country, Cortright was a man who always knew better than any one else how things should be done, and, while he and McGinnis were on their way to the pasture lot, he was severely criticising the manner in which a fight between a band of Indian raiders and the settlers some miles up the Delaware, a few days before, had been managed on the part of the leaders of the settlers, whom the Indians had defeated with great loss.

"Injins fight with a great hellabaloo," Bill Cortright remarked to McGinnis, "and they're afraid of a heliabaloo themselves. All you've got to do in fightin' Injins is to make jesti as much hellabaloo as the Injins does and pitch in. They'll soon turn tail and make tracks for cover. Hellabaloo is the best weepon in fighting Injins."

By this time the two ploneers had arrived at the pasture. They let down the bars and were about to enter the lot, when an Indian ross from the bushes on the other side. They made a tremendous hullabaloo.

Gaviota Defeats Eclipse.

The defeat of L. J. Callanan's yacht Eclipse by Col. Austen's Gaviota in the squadron run of the Atlantic Yacht Club between Black Bock and New London has created considerable comment among yachtswen. The Gaviota defeated Eclipse by newson minutes and to justice to Eclipse by near an inities and to have the popular owner of the Kalipsa, it is but fair to state that the result of the race is not a true test of the relative merits of the yachts. Eclipse led Gaviota until about midway between Faulkner's Island and Horton's Point, and there Mr. Callanan decided that the best course to Sarah's Ledge would be to square away for New London on the course which the remaining yachts of the squadron, with the exception of Gaviota and Eclipse, were sailing. He followed out this feet, and the yachts parted company, Co. Austin, on the with the electron of system and recipes, were sailing. He followed out this idea, and the yachts parted company, Col.
